Husch Blackwell Named a Top Patent Litigation Firm by Patexia

Husch Blackwell was recognized by Patexia, the world's largest network for intellectual property professionals, in its Patent Prosecution Intelligence Report 2026 as being among the top 100 performing law firms.

Patexia's study measured the performance and activity of stakeholder organizations, including attorneys, law firms, pharmaceutical companies and judges, evaluating 3,047 law firms and 14,197 attorneys over a five-year period ending in June 2025. The study analyzed more than 18,300 patent cases involving more than 17,811 unique patents.

Husch Blackwell's Intellectual Property Litigation team operates across multiple offices and includes 42 lawyers and two scientific advisors. The team has handled high-profile litigations that have set precedent before the Patent Trial and Appeal Board, involved blockbuster drug categories, and included matters before the Supreme Court.
