Husch Blackwell Announces Strategic Partnership with Blue J

Husch Blackwell is pleased to announce its strategic partnership with Blue J, a leading provider of innovative AI-powered tax research and intelligent diagramming tools.

Blue J's cutting-edge technology will help to navigate the ever-changing landscape of tax law providing the firm's tax practice with powerful tools that will free up time to focus on strategic and other high-value tasks.

Husch Blackwell's tax team provides sophisticated tax counseling to multinational and domestic companies, owners, executives, and estates. The partnership with Blue J allows the firm's tax attorneys to make tax law more accessible to clients and junior attorneys.

"We are always looking for tools to help us better and more efficiently serve our clients," said Robert Romashko, leader of Husch Blackwell's Tax practice. "By adding Blue J to our technology suite, we are able to better prepare clear and polished diagrams, and better guide and structure our tax research."

Through this partnership, which further underscores Husch Blackwell's investment in advanced technology for service delivery, Blue J will provide tax and diagramming solutions that analyze and map out complex tax issues quickly and efficiently.

"Husch Blackwell is dedicated to identifying legal information technology that best fits the needs of our attorneys and clients," said Blake Rooney, Husch Blackwell's Chief Information Officer. "Our experienced team of data scientists and engineers implement AI capabilities that allow our attorneys to achieve successful outcomes more quickly and in ways that previously were not possible."
