John Myer Named Fellow at 5 Lakes Institute

National law firm Husch Blackwell is pleased to announce that John Myer has been named a Fellow at 5 Lakes Institute.

In this role, Myer will help entrepreneurs, researchers and businesses in the Midwest/Great Lakes region identify and overcome challenges to commercialization of innovation technology.

At Husch Blackwell, he helps clients develop, fund, and deliver advanced science and engineering technologies. Formerly general counsel and corporate secretary at the U.S. Department of Energy's Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory (Fermilab), Myer is uniquely positioned to help drive deep tech innovation, including in AI, quantum, and fusion energy.

Founded in 2007, the 5 Lakes Institute is a network of entrepreneurs, research organizations, investors, and business and government leaders that drives and amplifies diverse and inclusive tech-enabled GDP growth in the Midwest and Great Lakes region.
