Husch Blackwell is pleased to announce that St. Louis-based Katie Trovitch has joined the firm's Tax Credits practice as a partner and member of the Financial Services & Capital Markets industry team. She joins the firm from Dentons.

"Katie's arrival significantly enhances our ability to deliver sophisticated, client-centered counsel across tax credit finance," said Sverre Roang, leader of the firm's Financial Services and Capital Markets industry group. "Having partnered with her on complex tax deals in the past, we know she's a seamless collaborator and is committed to achieving high-quality outcomes. Her strong technical capabilities and industry knowledge will reinforce our leadership in this space."

Trovitch has deep and highly specialized experience in tax credit finance transactions. She has represented investors, lenders, developers and community development entities in various incentive-based transactions, including those involving state and federal new markets tax credits.

"Joining Husch Blackwell feels like a natural step for me, as I've long admired the firm's collaborative culture and national strength," said Trovitch. "I look forward working alongside my new colleagues and leveraging our shared experience to provide innovative solutions for our clients."

Since the beginning of 2025, Husch Blackwell has welcomed six partners to the Financial Services & Capital Markets industry team, including Tara LeDay, Lorna McGeorge, and Bruce Toppin.
