OVERVIEW

Jennifer helps employers and foreign national professionals navigate the full spectrum of U.S. employment-based immigration with practical guidance and a commitment to exceptional client service.

With more than two decades of legal experience and over 14 years focused on immigration law, Jennifer brings deep familiarity with every stage of the immigration process—from initial filing through final adjudication. She works closely with attorneys to assist employers and employees with a broad range of nonimmigrant and immigrant visa matters, including H-1B, L-1A, L-1B, E-3, TN, O-1, and P-1 petitions, J-1 waivers, and consular processing. She also handles immigrant visa (green card) matters, including I-140 petitions, Permanent Labor Certification (PERM) and EB-1, EB-2, and EB-3 applications, as well as nonimmigrant status and work authorization for dependent family members.

Jennifer is known for her attention to detail, responsiveness, and ability to manage complex filings efficiently and accurately. Clients and attorneys alike rely on her to keep matters on track and to communicate clearly at every step. She takes pride in helping employers attract and retain global talent while supporting individuals in achieving their long-term immigration goals.
