OVERVIEW

With a strong background in litigation, e-discovery project management, government investigations, and trial attendance, Lauren assists both the Asbestos, Toxic Tort, and Product Liability and eDiscovery teams across multiple jurisdictions in both state and federal courts.

Lauren brings more than a decade of combined experience in both Big Law and government settings, where she has developed a strong foundation in complex litigation support, fact investigation, e-discovery technology, and strategic issue-spotting. Throughout her career, she has played a critical role in analyzing large volumes of case materials, conducting detailed factual and legal research, and assisting attorneys in developing effective case strategies. Her ability to identify key issues, synthesize complex information, and provide thoughtful litigation support has consistently contributed to favorable outcomes for clients.

Lauren has extensive experience supporting attorneys throughout all phases of the litigation lifecycle—from case inception and early case assessment through discovery, motion practice, trial preparation, and resolution. She is skilled in drafting and managing pleadings, coordinating discovery, overseeing e-discovery databases, and preparing matters for trial in high-stakes and complex litigation matters. She also has substantial experience handling government-related matters, including responding to FOIA and public records requests in both state and federal courts. Passionate about client service and committed to excellence, Lauren takes pride in delivering
