OVERVIEW

A paralegal for over fifteen years, Cassandra brings real-world experience and uncommon insight to every case.

Cassandra is a paralegal in Complex Torts, Toxic Tort, and Product Liability groups where she assists attorneys at all stages of litigation from fact investigation, document preparation and production, discovery, and trial preparation.

Cassandra has assisted with several high-profile healthcare litigation and product liability cases in Missouri and Illinois. Her attention to detail, organization, and teamwork make her an invaluable asset to any legal team.

Born out of a passion for social justice and an affinity for reading, writing, research, sharing knowledge, and developing deeper understanding, Cassandra began her career as a college-level sociology instructor. She has found that these skills and attributes have transferred well to the legal profession whether it be in researching witnesses, assessing damages, reviewing discovery productions, assisting with jury selection, or working with diverse clients and co-workers.
