OVERVIEW

Sara is a commercial litigator who represents individuals, emerging businesses, and Fortune 500 companies in complex disputes across a range of industries. She advises clients at every stage of a matter—from pre-litigation strategy through trial and appeal.

Clients turn to Sara when they need a clear, strategic path forward. She focuses on achieving efficient, practical resolutions aligned with each client's objectives, whether through dispositive motion practice, trial, mediation, or negotiated settlement. With her substantial litigation experience, she has a strong track record at every stage of litigation, including pre-litigation negotiations, preliminary injunctions, dispositive motions, trial, and on appeal. Her prior federal judicial clerkships provide valuable insight into judicial decision-making—and a distinct advantage in high-stakes litigation.

Sara's practice is grounded in a client-first approach. She begins every engagement by understanding the client's end goal and builds a strategy designed to achieve it—whether protecting sensitive business interests, resolving matters quickly and cost-effectively, or establishing precedent on a key legal position. Recognizing that disputes often arise at challenging moments—and that outcomes can have huge consequences—clients value her clear, responsive communication and candid risk assessments throughout the process.
