OVERVIEW

With a business-oriented approach, Brooke tackles complex regulatory and transactional challenges for healthcare clients.

Brooke leads the firm's Healthcare Regulatory practice group.

Brooke understands the importance of getting to know a client's business intimately in order to provide tailored solutions. She frequently works with health and pharmacy benefit managers, managed care organizations, health plans, pharmaceutical organizations, technology and research companies, pharmacies, hospitals, physician group practice, and other providers.

She guides clients in navigating the vast and complex payor/provider regulatory landscape and regularly provides guidance on payment and reimbursement issues, managed care regulations, Medicare Part D, Medicaid, federal and state insurance law, fraud and abuse issues, licensing requirements, and privacy and security laws. Brooke often interfaces with the federal and state agencies charged with enforcing these healthcare laws on behalf of clients who are faced with governmental inquiries, audits or enforcement actions and advises clients on developing compliance plans.

Brooke also provides guidance to for-profit and not-for-profit healthcare companies on corporate and contracting issues. She prepares and negotiates healthcare contracts with commercial and governmental entities and often assists clients with improving their contracting process. Brooke has successfully managed strategic healthcare transactions from initial evaluation and structuring to post-close integration.
