OVERVIEW

A corporate attorney and former in-house counsel, Chris helps renewable energy developers, transportation companies and other corporate clients navigate complex commercial transactions.

Clients in renewable energy, manufacturing, transportation and aviation – among other industries – turn to Chris for general corporate counsel and commercial transactions. An experienced corporate attorney, Chris helps executives actualize ideas while mitigating legal risk. Chris is known for breaking down legal details of the most ambitious client projects while keeping long-range client goals on track. Chris has advised clients on, and has drafted, reviewed and negotiated documents in connection with, a broad variety of transactions, including:

- Joint venture agreements, feedstock supply agreements, interconnection agreements, offtake agreements, development agreements, ground leases, easements and operations and maintenance agreements in connection with Renewable Natural Gas projects
- Interconnection and operating agreements, carbon sequestration agreements and associated agreements in connection with carbon capture and storage projects
