OVERVIEW

For more than 35 years, Ray has helped clients and legal teams in the United States and internationally.

Ray began his career as an attorney in the Philippines, where he represented individuals and corporations as a litigator in private practice, as a legal advisor within the Republic's Department of Agriculture, and as a banking legal officer. Ray then made his home in the United States, taking on positions in banking compliance before joining the firm's Asbestos Litigation team.

Ray collaborates with attorney teams at all stage of complex trial management, from processing and analyzing summons and complaints to preparing trial exhibits. In addition to his detailed research and coordination of discovery, depositions, pre-trial and trial documents, Ray also assists in maintaining high-volume document databases. Ray enjoys collaborating with subject-matter experts and attorney teams to help move client matters forward.
