OVERVIEW

Deb draws on more than 30 years of paralegal experience to support attorneys and clients in healthcare regulatory and litigation matters.

Throughout her career, Deb has worked with a wide variety of litigation matters, assisting clients of all types, from individuals to major corporations. She has also assisted in collective bargaining, healthcare regulatory and corporate matters, with a current focus on the healthcare industry. Today, she supports attorneys who advise and represent healthcare providers in state and federal regulatory matters.

Deb has long been passionate about her role in the legal industry: she enjoys working on matters of great importance to clients' lives and organizations, and she is especially enthusiastic about assisting healthcare providers because of the central role healthcare plays for both individuals and the larger community. She's excited to work with clients in such a rapidly developing field.

Deb is known for her decades of experience, but also for her organizational skills and her reliability. Clients and attorneys know they can count on her to be a step ahead of what they need.
