OVERVIEW

Jon supports the firm's Asbestos Litigation team, helping ensure that client needs are met.

Jon joined the legal industry soon after completing his undergraduate education and found it immensely satisfying to work in a field where he could make such meaningful contributions. He takes his hands-on role seriously, knowing that his work has a direct impact on client results. With a passion for collaboration, Jon especially enjoys working closely with attorneys, paralegals and other Husch Blackwell team members.

While Jon focuses primarily on asbestos cases, he has broad experience in commercial and civil litigation matters. He drafts legal documents, organizes exhibits and other materials for trial, gathers medical records, manages filings and tracks court deadlines for the firm's toxic tort clients, often supporting a busy docket of hundreds of cases across the country.

Jon is known for his collaborative nature and his focus on providing concierge-level support for both attorneys and clients. He also has a gift for innovation and problem solving, with a reputation for streamlining processes and ensuring that cases are managed as efficiently as possible.
