OVERVIEW

Madison represents clients in complex commercial litigation matters.

Madison focuses her practice on complex commercial litigation and products liability matters, handling a wide range of subject areas—from toxic tort matters to healthcare disputes, including representing payors in reimbursement litigation and defending against False Claims Act cases.

She applies her passion for advocacy through dispositive motion practice—achieving favorable outcomes at both the motion to dismiss and motion for summary judgment stages—as well as strategic legal planning. Madison is highly skilled in managing discovery for complex cases and positioning matters for successful resolution or trial. She enjoys immersing herself in the industries she serves, leveraging her insight and legal acumen to deliver results that align with clients' business objectives.

Known for her ambition, self-motivation, and collaborative approach, Madison earns clients' trust through her genuine care for their concerns and unwavering commitment to achieving their goals.
