OVERVIEW

Lisa brings three decades of experience as a legal professional.

She has spent her entire career in the legal field, working as a legal administrative assistant, paralegal, and court reporter in multiple areas of law. Lisa has a specific background that concentrates in the area of commercial civil litigation, with an emphasis on religious institutions. The religious institutions work has been deeply rewarding for Lisa over the years and has brought her an understanding of these unique clients' needs. Lisa has extensive experience in civil litigation, and she understands well the stresses that court actions can inflict on clients.

Lisa excels at communication and rises to the challenge of helping her team and their clients succeed in tough and stressful litigation situations. She also has advanced skills in client contact, drafting pleadings and correspondence, document review, case management, and team and client support at all levels of the Colorado state, federal, and appellate litigation process. Lisa is also a trained (although not practicing) certified shorthand court reporter.

Lisa is known for her easygoing manner and personality, but she uses her critical thinking to foster a true team mentality. She contributes value and good energy to her team and the clients.
