OVERVIEW

McKailah assists clients with estate planning and tax matters.

As an undergraduate, McKailah discovered an interest in criminal defense through legal studies courses. Although law school shifted her interest towards estate planning and tax work, she remains committed to using her knowledge of the law to help others. As a member of the firm's Private Wealth team, she now helps clients protect their family's future.

During law school, McKailah gained hands-on experience in client advocacy through her work with her university's legal clinic. She also served as a summer associate at the firm, where she learned from experienced attorneys and confirmed her decision to begin her career at Husch Blackwell.

McKailah is known for her personable nature, strong work ethic, and dedication to understanding client needs. She thrives on tackling challenging issues and developing effective solutions for clients.
