OVERVIEW

Jared assists clients with mergers, acquisitions, securities, and other corporate transactions.

Jared's decision to pursue a legal career was driven by a long-standing interest in the intersection of business and law. With a background in marketing and a passion for service, Jared is drawn to solving complex, real-world problems.

During law school, Jared was particularly drawn to business law and corporate law classes, which emphasized the practical application of law, deepening his understanding of corporate legal concepts. Jared's interest in corporate and transactional law stems from the opportunity to assist clients with significant transactions while leveraging his business and marketing background to connect with stakeholders. He enjoys working with entrepreneurs and helping clients with their corporate governance needs in a collaborative manner.

As a summer associate at Husch Blackwell, Jared assisted in due diligence processes, researched emerging legal issues, and maintained corporate governance records. This experience solidified his interest in corporate law and provided a well-rounded understanding of different practice areas.

Jared is known for his strong interpersonal skills, reliability, and effective communication style. With a background as a police dispatcher, Jared excels in negotiation and crisis management, remaining calm under pressure. Clients can expect a dedicated advocate who cares deeply about their goals and works efficiently to achieve them.
