OVERVIEW

Talia's focus is on private wealth management, helping clients navigate complex financial and estate planning.

Talia comes from a family of attorneys, with an ethos of justice and truth that has been engrained in her from a young age. She also has a personal passion for client-focused problem-solving. Her pre-law experiences include serving as an intern in all three branches of government, which solidified her deep interest in the intersection of law and policy. She served as a Sergeant operational canine handler in the Israel Defense Forces, where her status as a new immigrant and "lone soldier" taught her to advocate effectively within complex systems.

Drawn to private wealth management for its interpersonal nature and long-term relationships, Talia enjoys helping clients achieve their financial and life goals. Her non-traditional path, including a background in international affairs and public policy, allows her to offer innovative and well-rounded solutions. Talia's law school experience further honed her legal skills, particularly through her District Court externship for the Eastern District of Missouri where she gained valuable insights that benefit her transactional work.

Talia is known for her optimism, trustworthiness, and entrepreneurial spirit, which she has infused into her client interactions. With an LL.M. in Taxation, she remains committed to staying ahead of policy changes and ensuring proactive planning for clients.
