OVERVIEW

Carol defends sophisticated clients in labor and employment litigation.

From a young age, Carol was known for questioning rules and seeking out loopholes. This curiosity evolved into a fascination with interpreting the law to build strong, persuasive arguments. The challenge and reward of crafting legal strategies, grounded in precedent and sharp reasoning, led her to pursue a legal career.

Today, Carol focuses on labor and employment litigation, representing clients in complex disputes. She also collaborates with businesses to develop proactive policies aimed at minimizing legal risks and helping them avoid future litigation.

During law school, Carol actively participated in mock trials, refining her litigation skills and gaining confidence in the courtroom. Her judicial externship further sharpened her understanding of court procedures and the importance of precision in legal work.

Known for her attention to detail and clear, direct communication, Carol is dedicated to keeping clients informed and involved at every stage of the legal process.
