OVERVIEW

Tasha helps insurance clients navigate complex regulatory challenges, achieve compliance, and drive business growth.

Tasha focuses her practice on insurance regulatory and compliance matters, offering clients strategic guidance in complex licensing, corporate, and administrative processes. With extensive experience representing clients in insurance regulation, she frequently advises on acquisitions and mergers of insurers and agencies, company transactions for insurers and HMOs, insurer and HMO formation and licensure, and redomestications of insurers. She is well-versed in addressing inquiries from regulators, managing market conduct exams, and assisting clients in securing licenses to support growth and smooth operations. Her practice spans all aspects of insurance regulation, including reinsurance matters and Holding Company Act filings.

While Tasha assists clients with financial compliance issues and plans of rehabilitation for insolvent or troubled insurers, she sees her practice as primarily growth-focused: helping companies obtain licenses, expand their businesses, make investments, and work with regulators as they grow. She has the relationships necessary to facilitate efficient transactions, expansions, and the occasional enforcement action: Tasha has spent years building strong relationships with state regulators, helping her achieve successful outcomes quickly.

Tasha prides herself on offering creative solutions aligned with clients' business goals. In fact, her favorite matters are those where a client needs a customized plan to meet a highly complex challenge. She absolutely loves figuring out a client's specific needs
