OVERVIEW

Angie has a wealth of experience and a passion for the legal field with a motto of, “My job is to make your job easier.”

With over two decades of defense litigation, Angie has worked on cases involving personal injury and wrongful death, product liability, medical malpractice, premises liability, municipal law, government law, and 1983 civil action cases. She has successfully handled cases from inception through trial and to the appellate stage. She drafts pleadings, motions, and discovery documents, diving deep into investigations of the people and the issues at hand in cases. Angie collaborates with medical providers, courts, governmental agencies, expert witnesses, and insurance companies, among others. She has extensive experience in both the federal and local jurisdictions.

Angie is known for her positive and easygoing personality and ability to work under a great deal of pressure. She understands litigation can be scary, and clients appreciate her ability to calm them and keep them grounded. Angie is always among the first to take on additional work when she has the time and believes teamwork is key to a successful case outcome.
