OVERVIEW

Timothy represents banks, loan servicers, and other financial services companies in consumer finance matters. He practices from New York City through our virtual office, the Link.

Based in New York City, Timothy litigates on behalf of financial institutions nationwide as well as in both New York federal and state courts. He litigates individual consumer and class action cases involving federal statutes that govern lending, such as the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (FDCPA), Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA), Truth in Lending Act (TILA), and Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA).

Timothy also regularly represents banks and mortgage servicers in their role as trustees for investors in New York foreclosure and other matters. He previously served as managing counsel for servicers handling contested foreclosures and quiet title actions in both trial and appellate courts in New York. He works with clients to identify strategies that may allow them to get the best result possible.

Known for his research and writing skills, Timothy is valued for his clear communication style and for keeping clients informed at every stage. By focusing on practical solutions and transparency, Timothy helps clients navigate challenging litigation and complex foreclosures with confidence.
