

WHITE PAPERS

PUBLISHED: JULY 26, 2018

Services

Condominium &
HOA
Construction &
Design
Corporate Real Estate
Hospitality
Land Use
Real Estate
Investment
Retail Real Estate
Self Storage

Industry

Real Estate,
Development &
Construction

Professional

JOSHUA B. LEVY
MILWAUKEE:
414.978.5554
JOSHUA.LEVY@
HUSCHBLACKWELL.COM

Fraud, Forgery and Outright Theft: Strategies to Protect Project Funds

Theft comes in all shapes and sizes. Employees, vendors and subcontractors—even those a contractor has worked with for years—can act unscrupulously and even illegally to siphon money from a company. From falsifying invoices to funneling money to phantom companies, people with ill intentions are creative in figuring out ways to defraud. Contractors have to remain vigilant to detect when fraud or theft is occurring and to set up procedures to regularly assess their operating systems for vulnerabilities. Knowing the ways in which fraud commonly occurs in the construction industry is an important first step to reducing risk.